

詹姆斯

IN CHINA

www.james.cn.com

James McIntosh has won multiple, international awards as a cookery writer. He is also a food consultant and TV presenter. Raised on a farm in Northern Ireland, he is now based in London.

After studying for an MA in Home Economics, James moved to London. James worked in food manufacturing in his graduate job, then moved to the Le Cordon Bleu Cookery Schools writing cookery books and student programmes for 22 cookery schools across the globe before moving to the Good Housekeeping Institute. James went freelance in 2004 and has travelled the globe ever since. He holds many titles including:

- Global Ambassador for AGA Rangemaster
- Winner of Best Cookbook Series in the World, Gourmand World Cookbook Awards 2008
- Best food TV series at the Chinese TV and Radio Awards 2011 for his TV series on China Food TV: Food Adventures on the Silk Road 2
- Author of 9 cookery books and a food iPhone App
- Best Food TV presenter in the world, Gourmand World Food TV Awards 2013
- Britain's Food Ambassador, Farmers Weekly 2012
- Patron, Western International School of Shanghai

Along his journey, James has presented many hours of food TV shows in China and regularly gets audiences of up to 1 billion viewers. He also has his own food brand 'Honest Food by James McIntosh™' in Hong Kong and China.

James is a proactive member of the Guild of Food Writers and a Fellow of the Royal Society of Arts.

jamesmcintosh.co.uk
james@jamesmcintosh.co.uk
@jamesmcintosh
+44 (0)7572 430 050

Career highlights...

Food Noise™. James' company advocates Great British and Northern Irish Food. He says our home grown products are worth making a noise about.

A Northern Ireland Food ambassador. James was the keynote speaker at the Belfast Focus on Food Conference in 2015 and at the Derry Enterprise week 2015. He has also spoken at food events throughout the world.

China Food Television. James' TV series 'Food Adventures on the Silk Road 2' is now being shown on Air China international flights.

AGA cookers. James is a global AGA Rangemaster Brand Ambassador. He has recently helped promote the benefits of these Great British cookers in North America and China.

London World Food. Diners in London can eat food from just about every country in the world. James is documenting the definitive guide to London's global cuisine experience.

Quality Food and Drink Awards. James runs the kitchens for this prestigious event.

A man with short brown hair, wearing a dark grey t-shirt with a large blue number '8' and olive green cargo shorts, stands on a narrow, sunlit street in Hong Kong. He is smiling at the camera. The street is lined with multi-story buildings. On the left, a sign for 'DR C.W. PANG, DR C.K. LO MEDICO' is visible, along with Chinese characters '彭秋華' and '羅肖金'. Laundry is hanging from balconies and windows. A woman in a yellow shirt and black pants is walking away from the camera in the middle of the street. The scene is bright and sunny, with strong shadows on the pavement.

Personal insights ...

Family background. "Mum was a home economics teacher, Dad was a farmer. I was brought up to appreciate fresh, honest, wholesome food."

Education. "I took a Masters degree in home economics. Then I worked for Le Cordon Bleu Cookery Schools and as a researcher for the Good Housekeeping Institute."

Proudest moment. "When my Mix series of books were voted 'best series of cookbooks in the world' at the Gourmand World Cookbook awards."

Biggest surprise. "Being honoured as Britain's Food Ambassador of the year by the Farmers Weekly Magazine for my work in promoting British food in Asia."

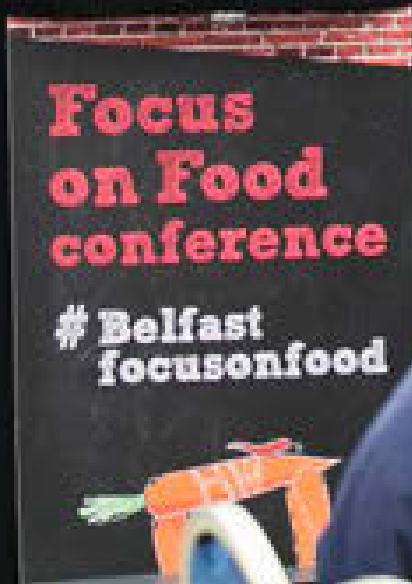

Most frightening experience. "Cooking live in front of a huge audience at the Bird's Nest Stadium, Beijing, and presenting the DayDayUp TV show to 100 million Chinese viewers."

Public presentations at food events

If you want some personality and flair for your public event, James can help. His speaking engagements include:

- University of New York
- University of Dundee
- Mikko College Jamaica
- Association of Nutrition Service Agencies in:
 - Los Angeles
 - New York
 - Vancouver
- University of Osnabrück
- London Metropolitan University

James has also a regular keynote speaker and in 2008 presented a keynote at the International Federation for Home Economics centenary congress in Luzern, Switzerland. He was the Keynote speaker at the Belfast Focus on Food Conference in 2015 and at the Derry Enterprise week 2015.

TV & video presenter

James has presented many hours of food TV across the world, including China where his 20 part TV series 'Food Adventures on the Silk Road 2' won the Chinese Media Award for Best documentary at the 2011 Awards. The series has been shown many times across China and has been shown on Air China. In 2013 James was awarded the Gourmand Award for Best TV Presenter. He has also appeared on the Chinese show 'Day Day Up'.

Magazine and Newspaper publications

James has written articles and been featured in numerous publications which have millions of readers.

Popular foodie publication 'East Eat Magazine' and the wildly popular 'Beijing Metro' have featured James' stories about fusion and Great British foods.

Book publishing personality

If you create food-related titles, James can add personality to your next production. He has created a world award-winning series of cookbooks and writes regular consumer articles about food topics. He has also spoken at the Frankfurt Book Fair and Paris Cookbook fair.

TV program : Food Adventures on the Silk Road 2

Three chefs - one Chinese, one Muslim, and one from Northern Ireland (that's James) - cook their way across the Silk in China. And millions of Asian TV viewers love it. It's even being shown on Air China.

For this second 20-part series, co-presenters Jimmy, Chakall and James take the Silk Road from X'ian - where the famous Terracotta Warriors come from - and cook their way to the Yumen Pass in the Gobi desert.

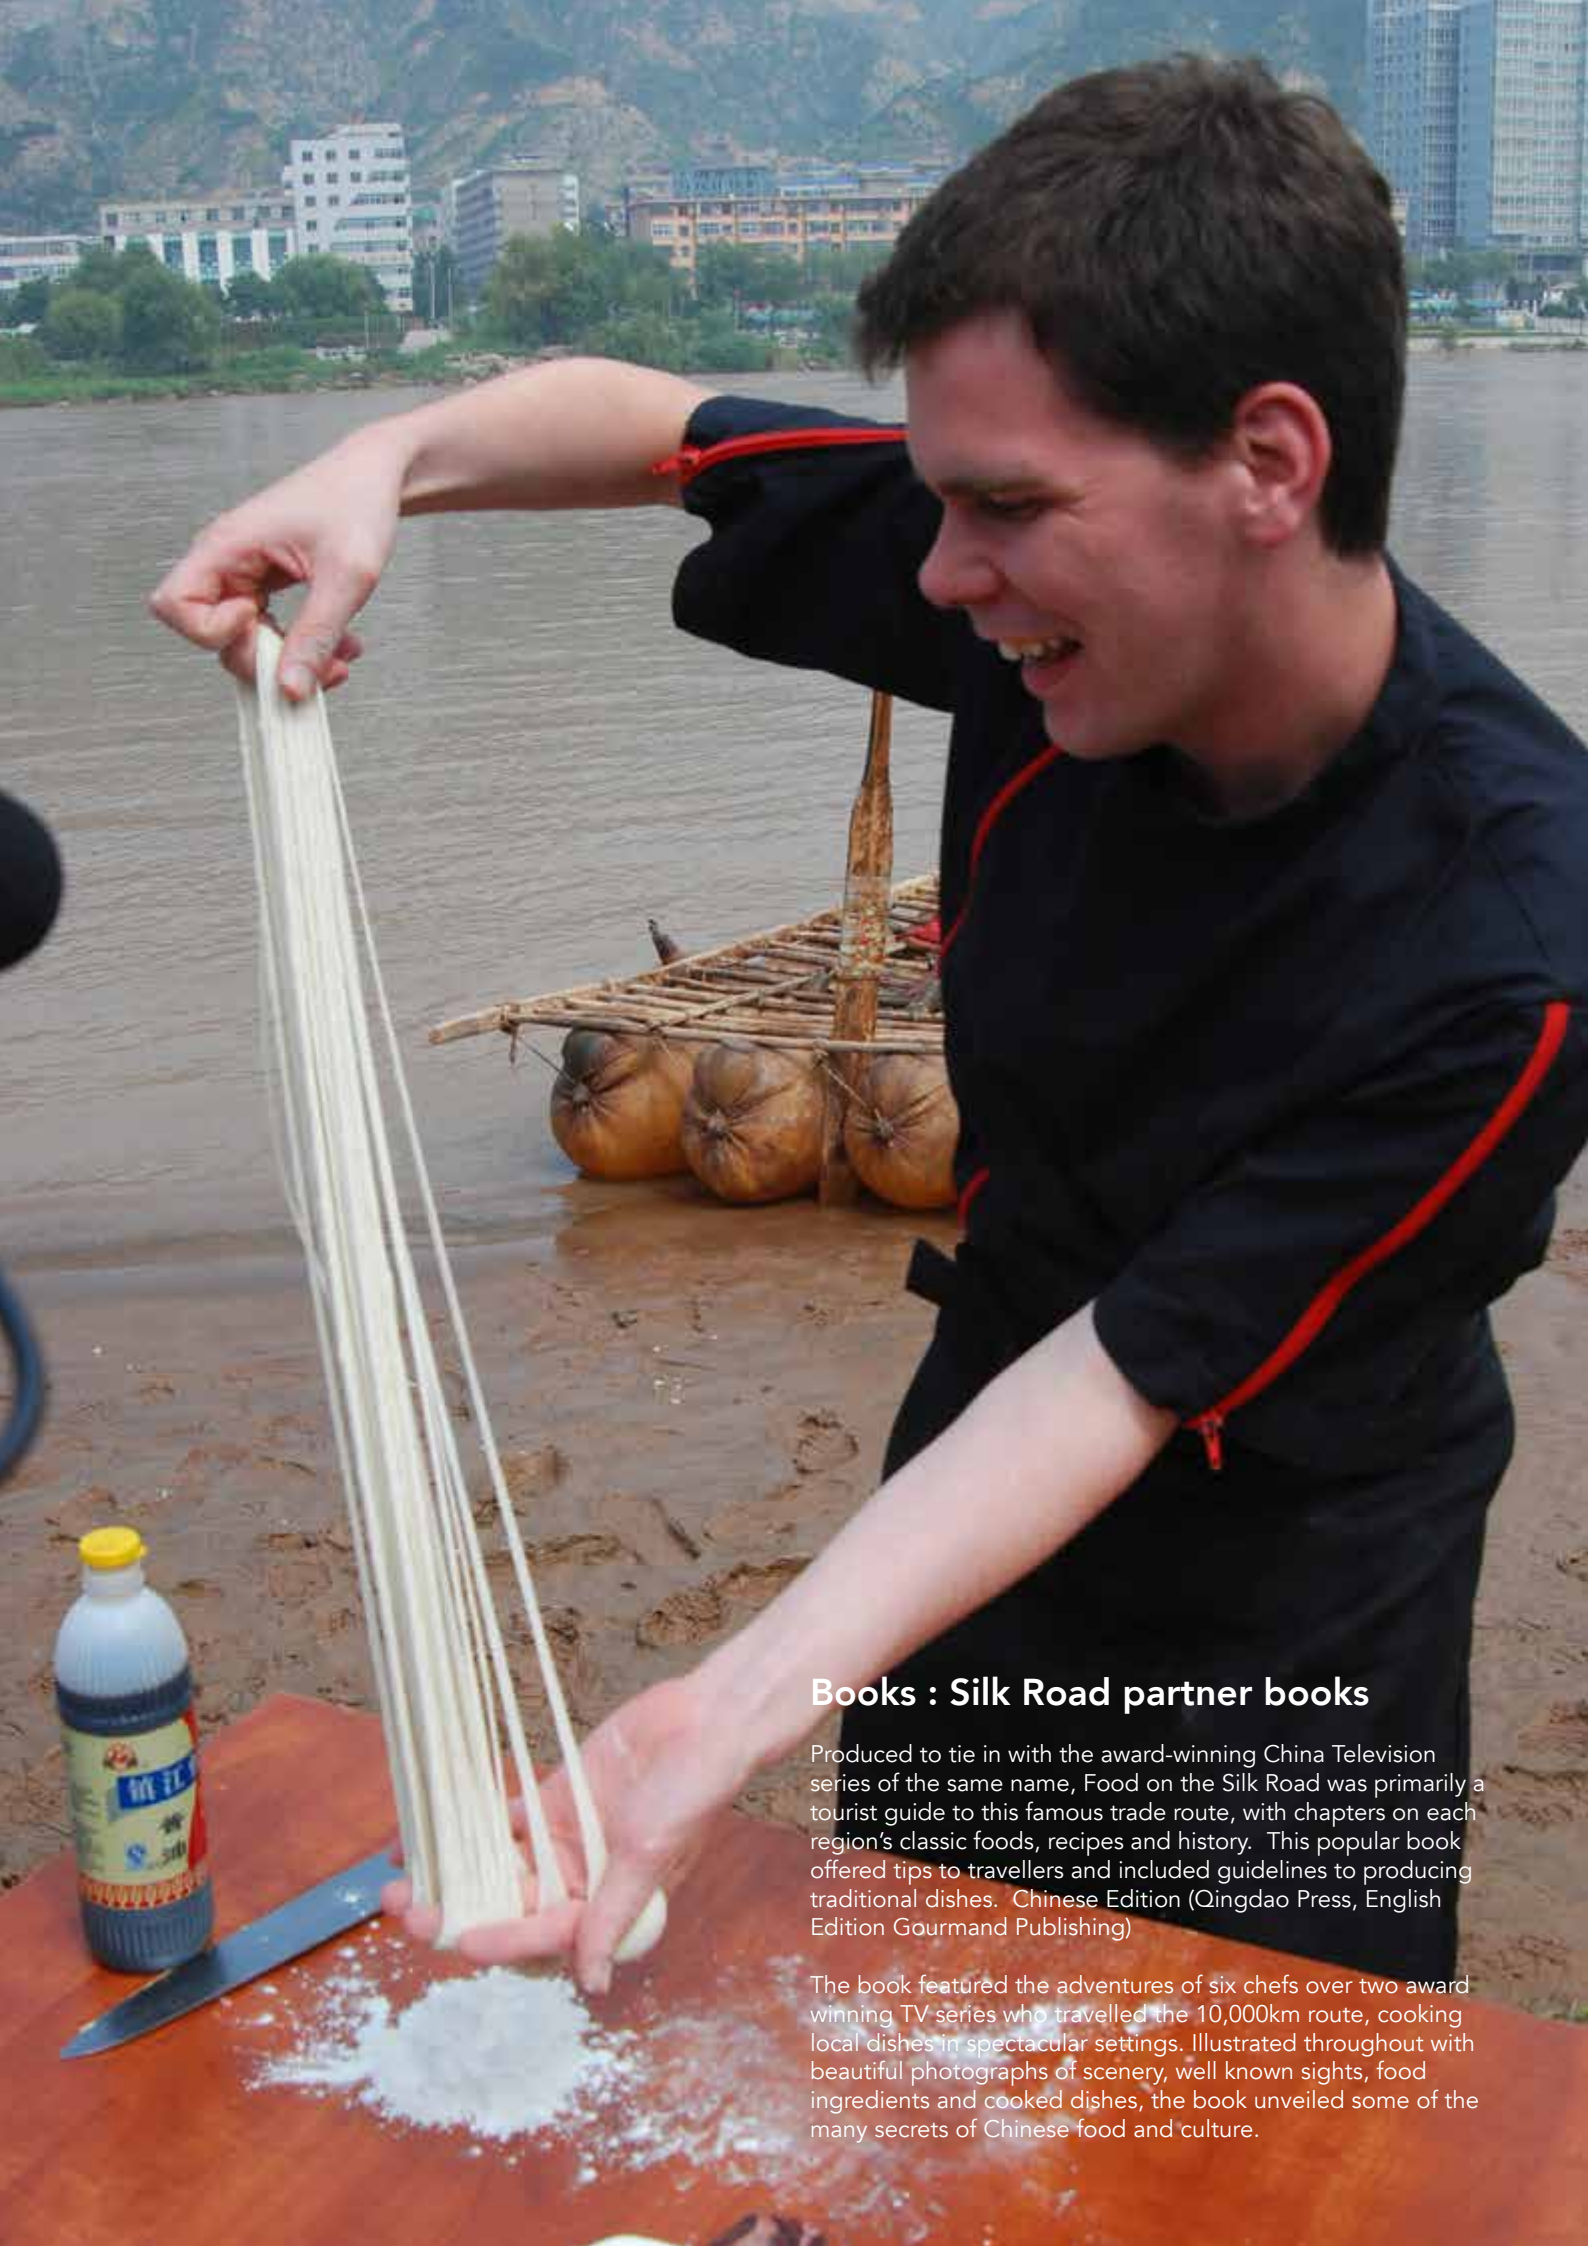

The Silk Road played a big part in the development of foods in China, the Middle East and Europe as herbs and spices were traded along the route.

TV program : 'Day Day Up' shows to one billion viewers.

Just before the 2012 London Olympics, James was invited to give a fusion cookery demonstration and talk about great British food on Day Day Up.

Day Day Up is China's most watched TV show, with around a billion people tuning in (that's about 35 times the population of the UK!).

In a moment of madness James also displayed his dancing skills. Now a billion people know he's no John Travolta!

Books : Silk Road partner books

Produced to tie in with the award-winning China Television series of the same name, Food on the Silk Road was primarily a tourist guide to this famous trade route, with chapters on each region's classic foods, recipes and history. This popular book offered tips to travellers and included guidelines to producing traditional dishes. Chinese Edition (Qingdao Press, English Edition Gourmand Publishing)

The book featured the adventures of six chefs over two award winning TV series who travelled the 10,000km route, cooking local dishes in spectacular settings. Illustrated throughout with beautiful photographs of scenery, well known sights, food ingredients and cooked dishes, the book unveiled some of the many secrets of Chinese food and culture.

HONEST FOOD

by James McIntosh™

FOOD YOU CAN HAVE FAITH IN

Products : Honest Food by James McIntosh™

Great British and Northern Irish Food. With nothing added. Whats in the product is on the label. And guaranteed GM free.

Food that's healthy ... and full of natural goodness and flavour. That's the new range of Honest Food by James McIntosh™.

Forget about 'e numbers' and all the other additives in modern food. James' Honest Food™ is how your grandmother would have cooked.

Available in Hong Kong from September 2015

www.jamesmcintosh.hk

Ambassador : promoting AGA Rangemaster cookers

James has had the honour of being a global Ambassador for AGA Rangemaster for a few years. And what could be more quintessentially British?

Before the AGA brand was introduced to Chinese consumers James created a paper titled 'Why Chinese Families Need AGA' to help explain the differences between British and Chinese cooking styles.

James has been cited in quite a few publications including the Telegraph and Financial Times for his work on the different cooking styles, and for his fusion cookery ideas.

WISS
Western International School of Shanghai
上海西华国际学校

Patron: Western International School of Shanghai

James is proud to be a patron the Western International School of Shanghai. It's a private school that takes kids from pre-school through to graduation.

The school teaches kids from 40 nationalities in a Bauhaus-designed campus.

James works closely with the school to hero good food for a healthy lifestyle following the school's mission to: 'cultivate healthy, balanced, confident and ethical people; striving to challenge and stimulate students to inquire, wonder, discover and create each day' with the aims of sending out graduates not the world brave, compassionate, internationally minded global citizens with the skill and intellect to help shape the future'.

Consultancy : FoodNoise™

Clients working with FoodNoise enjoy the opportunity of James' contacts and global knowledge of food, food TV and cookery book publishing.

James works strategically to achieve great results on an international level. Brand affiliation, charity and corporate associations are core offerings.

In essence, James writes, develops, demonstrates and presents. These skills are to make noise. Sometimes this noise is in the form of a gentle word to the right person at the right time. At other times its amplifying your message to a mass market.

